The effort of Thomas F. Ryan and his associates to get a foothold in the Seaboard or, as some suggested, control of that company, was accompanied by rumors at the time that he was acting in the interest of the Southern but this was strongly denied. The laws of some of the Southern States expressly preclude one company from controlling a competing road. This rendered it impossible for Mr. Morran to turn the Louisville and Nashville road over to the Southern. Instead of that it was intimated that other alliances would be made, bethaps with the Gould people, which would enable the Seaboard to do injury to the Morgan lines.
